

JLT and Campden BRI create strategic partnership to support risk and insurance understanding in the food and drink sector

28th February 2012, London: Following the appointment of JLT Specialty Limited (JLT) as insurance providers to Campden BRI in late 2011, the two organisations are now developing a strategic partnership to offer innovative services for food and drink companies.

JLT's Food & Drink Practice provides focused industry specific insurance and risk management solutions including property and business interruption, public and product liability, and product contamination and recall, all underpinned with global support.

Jon Miller, Associate, JLT, said, "We were delighted to be appointed by Campden BRI after initial discussion in early 2011. We quickly realized that we could also use our respective expertise for the benefit of sector."

Ian Edwards, Practice Head, Food & Drink, JLT, said, "This will start with a series of Business Interruption workshops in 2012. These half day events, which will be held in Nottingham, Birmingham, Leeds and Manchester are an excellent way to update food and drink companies on an important area of risk and insurance."

Bertrand Emond, Head of membership and Training, adds: "Campden BRI's wealth of expertise and experience in food production, processing, safety assurance, legislation, and analysis and testing - as well as our extensive pilot plant and laboratory facilities - perfectly complement the expertise that JLT can provide in risk and insurance. We are looking forward to using our partnership to deliver practical services and commercial benefits to our members and to other clients from the food and drink supply chain."
